

PILLSBURY WINTHROP SHAW PITTMAN LLP
REYNOLD L. SIEMENS #177956

Email: reynold.siemens@pillsburylaw.com

725 South Figueroa Street, Suite 2800

Los Angeles, CA 90017-5406

Telephone: (213) 488-7100

Facsimile: (213) 629-1033

PILLSBURY WINTHROP SHAW PITTMAN LLP
BRUCE A. ERICSON #76342

Email: bruce.ericson@pillsburylaw.com

GEORGE ALLEN BRANDT #264935

Email: allen.brandt@pillsburylaw.com

50 Fremont Street

Post Office Box 7880

San Francisco, CA 94120-7880

Telephone: (415) 983-1000

Facsimile: (415) 983-1200

Attorneys for Defendants ROBERT JOHN BURRELL, WILLIAM CHENEY, GORDON DAMES, ROBERT H. HARVEY, JR., JAMES JORDAN,
TIMOTHY M. KRAMER, ROBIN LENTZ, JOHN M. MERLO, WARREN
NAKAMURA, BRIAN OSBERG, DAVID RHAMY and SHARON UPDIKE

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT

CENTRAL DISTRICT OF CALIFORNIA

WESTERN DIVISION

NATIONAL CREDIT UNION
ADMINISTRATION BOARD AS CONSERVATOR FOR WESTERN
CORPORATE FEDERAL CREDIT UNION,

Plaintiff,

vs.

ROBERT A. SIRAVO, et al.,

Defendants.

No. CV 10-01597 GW (MANx)

MEMORANDUM IN SUPPORT OF DEFENDANTS' MOTION TO DISMISS PLAINTIFF'S FIRST
AMENDED COMPLAINT

Honorable George H. Wu

Courtroom 10

312 North Spring Street

Date: December 20, 2010

Time: 8:30 a.m.

Courtroom: Los Angeles, 10

1	Table of Contents
2		Page
3	I. INTRODUCTION AND SUMMARY OF
4	ARGUMENT. ....	1
5	II. STATEMENT OF THE CASE. ....	2
6	A. The parties. ....	2
7	B. Procedural history. ....	2
8	C. The FAC's allegations about the Investment Claims. ....	3
9	III. ARGUMENT. ....	6
10	A. The FAC's First Claim does not state a claim for
11	negligent breach of fiduciary duties because it fails
12	to allege facts sufficient to overcome California's
13	Business Judgment Rule. ....	6
14	1. California's Business Judgment Rule governs
15	the First Claim. ....	6
16	2. The FAC does not allege facts sufficient to
17	overcome California's Business Judgment
18	Rule. ....	10
19	a. The FAC does not allege that the
20	content of Defendants' business
21	decisions was irrational or gross
22	overreaching. ....	11
23	b. The FAC does not allege fraud, bad
24	faith or conflicts of interest. ....	12
25	c. The FAC's process allegations not do
26	overcome the Business Judgment Rule. ....	13
27	d. The FAC fails to allege facts particular
28	to Burrell. ....	17
	B. The FAC's Second Claim does not state a claim for gross negligence because California law does not recognize a general claim for gross negligence and because the FAC does not allege facts amounting to
	gross negligence. ....	18
	1. The federal statutory floor does not apply in
	California. ....	18
	2. California law does not recognize a general
	claim for gross negligence. ....	18

1	3.	The FAC does not allege facts amounting to gross negligence.....	19
2
3	C.	The FAC's First and Second Claims are time-barred as against Cheney, Updike and Rhamy.....	21
4	D.	Dismissal should be without leave to amend.....	24
5	IV.	CONCLUSION. ....	24
6
7
8
9
10
11
12
13
14
15
16
17
18 19 20
21
22
23
24
25
26
27
28

1	Table of Authorities
2		Page
3	Cases
4	Archie v. City of Racine ,
5	847 F.2d 1211 (7th Cir. 1988).....	23
6	Ashcroft v. Iqbal ,
7	129 S. Ct. 1937 (2009) .....	3, 6
8	Atherton v. FDIC ,
9	519 U.S. 213, 117 S. Ct. 666 (1997) .....	6, 18, 19
10	Barnes v. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. ,
11	16 Cal. App. 4th 365, 20 Cal. Rptr. 2d 87 (1993).....	9
12	Bell Atlantic Corp. v. Twombly ,
13	550 U.S. 544, 127 S. Ct. 1955 (2007) .....	3, 17
14	Berg &amp; Berg Enters., LLC v. Boyle ,
15	178 Cal. App. 4th 1020, 100 Cal. Rptr. 3d 875 (2009).....	7, 8, 9
16	Briano v. Rubio ,
17	46 Cal. App. 4th 1167, 54 Cal. Rptr. 2d 408 (1996).....	24
18	Bridgeport Holdings, Inc. Liquidating Trust v. Boyer ,
19	388 B.R. 548 (Bankr. D. Del. 2008) .....	17
20	Burt v. Irvine Co. ,
21	237 Cal. App. 2d 828, 47 Cal. Rptr. 392 (1965).....	22
22	City of Santa Barbara v. Superior Court ,
23	41 Cal. 4th 747, 62 Cal. Rptr. 3d 527 (2007).....	19, 21
24	Continental Ins. Co. v. Am. Prot. Indus. ,
25	197 Cal. App. 3d 322, 242 Cal. Rptr. 784 (1987) .....	19, 23
26	Devito v. California ,
27	202 Cal. App. 3d 264, 248 Cal. Rptr. 330 (1988).....	19
28	Eastburn v. Regional Fire Protection Authority ,
	31 Cal. 4th 1175, 7 Cal. Rptr. 3d 552 (2003).....	19
	Eminence Capital, LLC v. Aspeon Inc. ,
	316 F.3d 1048 (9th Cir. 2003).....	24
	Estate of Detwiler v. Offenbecher ,
	728 F. Supp. 103 (S.D.N.Y. 1989).....	16
	Fairchild v. Bank of Am. Nat. Trust &amp; Sav. Asso. ,
	192 Cal. App. 2d 252, 13 Cal. Rptr. 491 (1961).....	9

1	FDIC v. Castetter ,
	184 F.3d 1040 (9th Cir. 1999).....	7, 11, 16, 18
2
3	FDIC v. McSweeney ,
	976 F.2d 532 (9th Cir. 1992).....	21, 22, 23
4	Findley v. Garrett ,
	109 Cal. App. 2d 166, 240 P.2d 421 (1952) .....	9
5
6	Gantler v. Stephens ,
	965 A.2d 695 (Del. 2009).....	17
7	Gully v. NCUA ,
	341 F.3d 155 (2d Cir. 2003) .....	6
8
9	In re Caremark Int’l Inc. Derivative Litig. ,
	698 A.2d 959 (Del. Ch. 1996) .....	10
10	In re Citigroup Inc. Shareholder Derivative Litig. ,
	964 A.2d 106 (Del. Ch. 2009) .....	9, 11, 12
11
12	In re Consumers Power Co. Derivative Litig. ,
	132 F.R.D. 455 (E.D. Mich. 1990).....	16
13	In re Countrywide Fin. Corp. Sec. Litig. ,
	588 F. Supp. 2d 1132 (C.D. Cal. 2008).....	4
14
15	In re Hansen Natural Corp. Sec. Litig. ,
	527 F. Supp. 2d 1142 (C.D. Cal. 2007).....	24
16	In re Sec. Capital Assur. Secs. Litig. ,
	No. 07 Civ. 11086 (DAB), 2010 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 33954
17	(S.D.N.Y. Mar. 10, 2010).....	4
18	In re Walt Disney Co. Deriv. Litig. ,
	907 A.2d 693 (Del. Ch. 2005) .....	20
19
20	Lee v. Interinsurance Exchange ,
	50 Cal. App. 4th 694, 57 Cal. Rptr. 2d 798 (1996) .....	9, 13, 15, 16
21	Lehman v. Superior Court ,
	145 Cal. App. 4th 109, 51 Cal. Rptr. 3d 411 (2006).....	24
22
23	Martinez v. United States ,
	No. EDCV 09-0375-SVW(RC), 2010 U.S. Dist. LEXIS
24	105763 (C.D. Cal. Mar. 25, 2010) .....	19, 21
25	McMichael v. United States Filter Corp. ,
	No. EDCV 99-182 VAP (MCx), 2001 U.S. Dist. LEXIS
26	3918 (C.D. Cal. Feb. 23, 2001) .....	9, 17
27	Merrill Lynch Int’l v. XL Capital Assur. Inc. ,
	564 F. Supp. 2d 298 (S.D.N.Y. 2008).....	4
28

1	Moss v. U.S. Secret Service,
2	572 F.3d 962 (9th Cir. 2009).....	6, 17
3	Ritter &amp; Ritter Pension &amp; Profit Sharing Plan v. Churchill
4	Condo. Ass’n,
5	166 Cal. App. 4th 103, 82 Cal. Rptr. 3d 389 (2008).....	7, 11
6	Rodriguez de Quijas v. Shearson/American Express, Inc.,
7	490 U.S. 477, 109 S. Ct. 1917 (1989) .....	22
8	RTC v. Blasdell,
9	930 F. Supp. 417 (D. Ariz. 1994).....	20
10	Saenz v. Whitewater Voyages, Inc.,
11	226 Cal. App. 3d 758, 276 Cal. Rptr. 672 (1991) .....	19
12	Smith v. Superior Court,
13	217 Cal. App. 3d 950, 266 Cal. Rptr. 253 (1990) .....	24
14	Southern Counties Thrift Co. v. Rairdon,
15	47 Cal. App. 2d 770, 118 P.2d 828 (1941).....	22
16	Trenwick Am. Litig. Trust v. Ernst &amp; Young LLP,
17	906 A.2d 168 (Del. Ch. 2006) .....	21
18	United States v. Zuniga,
19	579 F.3d 845 (8th Cir. 2009).....	22
20	Wilson v. Brett,
21	[1843] 11 M. & W. 113, 152 Eng. Rep. 737 .....	23
22
23	Statutes and Codes
24	California Business & Professions Code
25	Section 2533 .....	19
26	Section 2563 .....	19
27	Section 3137 .....	19
28	Section 3401 .....	19
29	California Code of Civil Procedure
30	Section 339 .....	22
31	Section 343 .....	22
32	Section 359 .....	23, 24
33	California Corporations Code
34	Section 309 .....	passim
35	Section 7231 .....	7, 11

1	United States Code
	Title 12, section 1752a(a) .....	2
2	Title 12, section 1757(15)(B) .....	4, 12
	Title 12, section 1757(7)(E) .....	4
3	Title 12, section 1761(a) .....	12
	Title 12, section 1761(c) .....	12
4	Title 12, section 1766(a) .....	14
	Title 12, section 1786(h)(1) .....	2
5	Title 12, section 1787(b)(14) .....	21
	Title 12, section 1787(h) .....	6, 18, 23, 24
6	Title 12, section 1821(k) .....	6

Rules and Regulations

8	Code of Federal Regulations
	Title 12, Part 704, Appx. B .....	4, 12, 14, 15
9	Title 12, section 700-797 .....	12
	Title 12, section 703.14(d) .....	14
10	Title 12, section 703.2 .....	14
	Title 12, section 703.3(f) .....	14
11	Title 12, section 703.7 .....	14
	Title 12, section 704.10 .....	12, 14
12	Title 12, section 704.5 .....	4, 12
	Title 12, section 704.6 .....	12, 14
13	Title 12, section 704.6(d) .....	14, 15
	Title 12, section 704.8 .....	12
14	Title 12, sections 703.16(d)-(f) .....	14
	Title 12, sections 703.1-703.19 .....	12
15	Title 12, sections 704.5(c), (h) .....	14

Other Authorities

17	3 B.E. Witkin, California Procedure , Actions § 650 (5th ed.
18	2008) .....	22
19	75 Fed. Reg. 64851 (Oct. 20, 2010) .....	15

20
21
22
23
24
25
26
27
28

1     I.     INTRODUCTION AND SUMMARY OF ARGUMENT.

2             This motion to dismiss, brought by 11 former unpaid volunteer directors
3     and one former officer, attacks the legal sufficiency of the First and Second
4     Claims in the First Amended Complaint, Doc. 84 (“FAC”), filed by the National 5     Credit Union Administration Board (“NCUA”); these 12 defendants (the 6     “Defendants”) are not parties to the Third through Sixth Claims.

7             The First Claim, for negligent breach of fiduciary duty, attacks investment
8     decisions made by Western Federal Corporate Credit Union (“WesCorp”). It
9     focuses almost exclusively on the content and result of those decisions, and only 10    incidentally on the process by which those decisions were made. In so doing,
11    this claim fails to plead – as it must – an exception to California’s Business
12    Judgment Rule, which insulates the content and result of business decisions –
13    even risky decisions – from judicial review so long as the process was rational.
14    Here, the FAC alleges nothing that undermines the rationality of Defendants’
15    processes. Nor does the First Claim allege any fraud, bad faith or conflicts of 16    interest, much less the “gross overreaching” needed to overcome the Business
17    Judgment Rule. Indeed, the FAC candidly admits the careful processes by which 18    Defendants made their decisions, and fails even to suggest that these processes
19    fell short of the detailed legal requirements set by the NCUA’s statutes and 20    regulations, which expressly allow investments of the sort made here and 21    expressly set forth how directors were to approach their investment decisions.

22            The Second Claim attacks the same investments, this time labeling them
23    grossly negligent, but with nothing more by way of factual allegations to support
24    that theory. This claim has other legal infirmities as well. The statute under 25    which the NCUA brings this claim sets a federal floor: it applies only if state
26    law limits liability to levels of culpability more serious than gross negligence, 27    and then it looks to state law for the contours of gross negligence. That federal 28    floor has no application in California. But if it did, the NCUA still would have no claim, because its factual allegations do not come anywhere near the showing of “want of even scant care,” “extreme departure from the ordinary standard of conduct,” “reckless indifference,” “deliberate disregard” or conduct “without the bounds of reason” required to state a claim of gross negligence against directors.

Both claims also fail to satisfy the statute of limitations as to three Defendants (Cheney, Rhamy and Updike) because all left WesCorp’s Board early in 2006, before the beginning of the applicable limitations periods.

II. STATEMENT OF THE CASE.

A. The parties.

The NCUA is an independent federal agency created pursuant to 12 U.S.C. § 1752a(a). The NCUA alleges that on March 19, 2009 it placed WesCorp into a conservatorship pursuant to 12 U.S.C. § 1786(h)(1) and succeeded to the rights of WesCorp and its members, including the right to bring this case against WesCorp’s former directors and officers. FAC ¶ 1.

The 16 named defendants are some but not all of the former unpaid volunteer directors and officers of WesCorp. FAC ¶¶ 6-21. The movants here are 11 former directors and one former officer (Robert Burrell). Id. What these 12 defendants have in common is that all are named in the First and Second Claims (the “Investment Claims”), but not in the Third through Sixth Claims (the “SERP Claims”).

B. Procedural history.

The NCUA took over WesCorp and placed it into a conservatorship on March 19, 2009. FAC ¶ 1. Unlike the usual private plaintiff, who must prepare a complaint with little or no access to the defendants’ records, the NCUA had daily access to WesCorp’s books and records – and to its employees – for a year and a half before it filed the FAC. It has had plenty of time and opportunity to investigate and develop its claims, and no reason not to file a detailed and specific complaint satisfying Bell Atlantic Corp. v. Twombly, 550 U.S. 544,

1 127 S. Ct. 1955 (2007), and Ashcroft v. Iqbal, 129 S. Ct. 1937 (2009).

2 The seven original plaintiffs filed this case in Superior Court in November
3 2009. The NCUA intervened and then removed the case to this Court. Doc. 1.
4 The NCUA and the original plaintiffs fought over who owned the claims and 5 should control the litigation (Doc. 31, 40-43); the Court ruled largely in favor of 6 the NCUA (Doc. 66). After further disagreements between the NCUA and the 7 original plaintiffs, and a status conference (Doc. 80-81), the NCUA filed the 8 FAC and the original plaintiffs withdrew from the case (Doc. 84-85).

9 C. The FAC's allegations about the Investment Claims.

10 The FAC asserts two claims against Defendants: negligent breach of 11 fiduciary duty and gross negligence. FAC ¶¶ 114, 121. Both claims principally 12 attack the content and result of Defendants' decisions, as opposed to the process
13 by which Defendants made those decisions. As discussed below, the law treats 14 the process of decision-making differently from the content and results of those 15 decisions, hence this memorandum distinguishes between them.

16 The FAC's allegations about the content of Defendants' business
17 decisions: The FAC alleges that WesCorp changed its business model starting in 18 2002, abandoning its "traditional business model" in favor of growth in assets,
19 borrowing and interest income from investments. FAC ¶¶ 25-30, 44-53.
20 WesCorp sought higher yields on its investments and therefore bought 21 proportionately more mortgage-backed securities ("MBS") issued by "the 22 world's leading investment banks" (which the FAC calls "private-label MBS")
23 and proportionately less MBS issued by the Federal National Mortgage
24 Association ("Fannie Mae") and the Federal Home Loan Mortgage Corporation
25 ("Freddie Mac"), the two government-sponsored enterprises that the federal 26 government put into conservatorship in September 2008. FAC ¶¶ 32, 55.

27 In addition to buying more MBS underwritten by "leading investment 28 banks" and less issued by Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac, Defendants also

1 temporarily increased the concentration of AA-rated (as opposed to AAA-rated)
2 MBS until 2005 but then decreased the concentration of AA (in favor of AAA)
3 until 2007, when WesCorp ceased buying MBS altogether. FAC ¶¶ 62-64. The 4 FAC admits that all private-label MBS that WesCorp purchased were rated AAA
5 or AA (the highest two ratings) by Moody's or S&P. FAC ¶ 32. The FAC does
6 not suggest that WesCorp ever bought lower-rated or lower tranche MBS.<sup>1</sup>

7 The FAC does not question the legality of these investments. Nor could it,
8 for the Federal Credit Union Act expressly contemplates and authorizes such 9 investments. 12 U.S.C. § 1757(7)(E) (permitting investments in MBS issued by 10 Fannie and Freddie), § 1757(15)(B) (permitting investments in other MBS). So 11 too do the NCUA's regulations. See 12 C.F.R. § 704.5(c) (Mar. 19, 1997) and 12 Part 704, Appx. B (Oct. 25, 2002). The FAC's main "content" allegation is that 13 Defendants bought too much "Option ARM" MBS.<sup>2</sup> FAC ¶¶ 30-31, 113, 121.
14 The FAC admits that WesCorp adopted policies specifying concentration limits
15 for various types of securities and periodically amended the limits. FAC ¶ 69.
16 The FAC also admits that WesCorp stayed within those limits. FAC ¶¶ 69, 73.

---

18 <sup>1</sup> The FAC does not explain this point, but the case law does. Typically an 19 offering of MBS consists of as many as a dozen classes, or "tranches."
20 Investors purchasing the least risky or "senior" tranches receive lower 21 interest; investors purchasing the junior tranches receive more interest to 22 compensate them for bearing more risk. The ratings agencies (such as 23 Moody's and S&P) issue separate ratings for each tranche. Thus, a senior 24 tranche could be AAA, whereas a junior tranche could be BB or even unrated
25 "equity." Merrill Lynch Int'l v. XL Capital Assur. Inc., 564 F. Supp. 2d 298,
300 (S.D.N.Y. 2008); In re Sec. Capital Assur. Secs. Litig., No. 07 Civ. 11086
(DAB), 2010 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 33954, *10-11 (S.D.N.Y. Mar. 10, 2010).
The FAC alleges that WesCorp bought only AAA- and AA-rated MBS, and started moving out of AA after 2005. FAC ¶¶ 62-64.

26 <sup>2</sup> The FAC does not define this term either. Option ARMs are adjustable rate 27 mortgages ("ARMs") in which the borrower is given some latitude (hence the 28 "Option") to say how much he or she will pay each month. See In re Countrywide Fin. Corp. Sec. Litig., 588 F. Supp. 2d 1132, 1150 (C.D. Cal.
2008).

1 The FAC faults WesCorp for not adopting a concentration limit specifically for 2 Option ARM MBS, but does not allege facts showing the need for a limit was
3 apparent when WesCorp was buying Option ARMs – in other words, that “red
4 flags” were flying which Defendants should have spotted. FAC ¶ 70. (WesCorp
5 ceased buying MBS altogether by mid 2007. FAC ¶ 64.)

6 The FAC’s allegations about the process by which Defendants made their 7 business decisions: The FAC’s allegations about process are few and far
8 between, and far less specific than the FAC’s admissions about what WesCorp
9 did right. Significantly, the FAC does not allege that WesCorp ever violated any 10 of the NCUA’s detailed regulations or other directives prescribing how to 11 analyze and monitor investments (about which more below).

12 The FAC admits that Defendants received detailed information about 13 WesCorp’s investment portfolio, set appropriate concentration limits and lived
14 within those limits, bought only high-rated investments (mostly AAA),
15 monitored trends, lowered their exposure to riskier investments (nothing below 16 AA) when risks emerged and got out of the market altogether long before most 17 on Wall Street. E.g., FAC ¶¶ 32, 63-66, 69-70, 74-77. The FAC also admits that 18 WesCorp classified and tracked MBS investments by rating (AAA and AA) and 19 FICO score (prime, alt-A, and subprime), and used the bond rating of 20 investments to track tranche positions. FAC ¶¶ 71-72.

21 The FAC admits that each year Defendants adopted a budget that
22 contained detailed information about projected expenses and projected fee
23 income, including monthly projections of investment income, investment
24 expense and net interest income. FAC ¶ 65. The FAC admits that Defendants
25 regularly attended meetings of WesCorp’s Board of Directors and its Asset and 26 Liability Committee (“ALCO”), and thus regularly received information about 27 the state of the economy, the investment climate and WesCorp’s investment
28 strategy. FAC ¶ 74. The FAC also admits that Defendants received and

1 considered presentations on Option ARM MBS and took affirmative steps to 2 adjust WesCorp's investment strategy based on the information received at 3 ALCO meetings (e.g., starting to get out of AA in 2005). FAC ¶¶ 62-64, 75-77.

4 These admissions aside, the FAC's allegations about process are either
5 completely conclusory (FAC ¶ 113) and therefore to be disregarded, see Iqbal,
6 129 S. Ct. at 1949; Moss v. U.S. Secret Service, 572 F.3d 962, 969 (9th Cir.
7 2009), or else nit-pick the format of the reports that the Board received from 8 management. FAC ¶ 71-72, 114(e) (reports focused on rating agencies' rating
9 rather than tranche level or whether underlying loans were Option ARMs).

10 The FAC's allegations about the results of the business decisions: The 11 FAC alleges that WesCorp failed because it "was required to record losses of 12 $6.8 billion in its investment portfolio" (FAC ¶ 33) and that Defendants caused 13 losses "not fully ascertained but in excess of $1 billion" (FAC ¶¶ 117, 123). The 14 FAC does not allege whether the MBS currently are delinquent on payments, or 15 whether any MBS actually have been sold at a loss.

16 III. ARGUMENT.

17 A. The FAC's First Claim does not state a claim for negligent breach of 18 fiduciary duties because it fails to allege facts sufficient to overcome
19 California's Business Judgment Rule.

20 1. California's Business Judgment Rule governs the First Claim.

21 A federal statute, 12 U.S.C. § 1787(h), defines the liability of directors and 22 officers of a credit union. That statute permits the NCUA to look to state law, so 23 long as state law requires no more culpability than gross negligence. See Gully v.
24 NCUA, 341 F.3d 155, 165 (2d Cir. 2003) (applying New York's corporate 25 fiduciary duty statute and common law to an officer's breach of fiduciary duty);
26 cf. Atherton v. FDIC, 519 U.S. 213, 215-16, 117 S. Ct. 666, 669-70 (1997)
27 (construing 12 U.S.C. § 1821(k), which is the FDIC's analogue to § 1787(h)).
28 California law meets this statutory standard. FDIC v. Castetter, 184 F.3d 1040,

1 1043-44 (9th Cir. 1999). Thus, the Court should look to California law in 2 determining whether the First Claim states a claim.

3 California follows (and indeed has codified, Cal. Corp. Code §§ 309,
4 7231) the Business Judgment Rule. That Rule insulates directors from liability
5 for simple negligence (which is what the First Claim alleges, FAC ¶¶ 35, 114) so
6 long as the directors acted in good faith, without conflicts of interest, and did
7 what they believed to be in the best interest of the corporation. Castetter,
8 184 F.3d at 1044. The Rule “protect[s] well-meaning directors who are 9 misinformed, misguided, and honestly mistaken” from judicial second-guessing.
10 Id. at 1046. Or, as California courts express it, “The business judgment rule ‘sets
11 up a presumption that directors' decisions are based on sound business judgment.
12 This presumption can be rebutted only by a factual showing of fraud, bad faith or 13 gross overreaching.’” Ritter & Ritter Pension & Profit Sharing Plan v. Churchill
14 Condo. Ass’n, 166 Cal. App. 4th 103, 123, 82 Cal. Rptr. 3d 389, 403 (2008)
15 (citations omitted).

16 Berg & Berg Enters., LLC v. Boyle, 178 Cal. App. 4th 1020, 1045, 100
17 Cal. Rptr. 3d 875, 897 (2009) explains California’s Business Judgment Rule:
18 [T]he common law rule “has two components – one which 19 immunizes directors from personal liability if they act in accordance 20 with its requirements, and another which insulates from court
21 intervention those management decisions which are made by 22 directors in good faith in what the directors believe is the 23 organization's best interest. Only the first component is embodied 24 in Corporations Code section 309.” The broader rule is ““a judicial 25 policy of deference to the business judgment of corporate directors
26 in the exercise of their broad discretion in making corporate 27 decisions.”” [It] is based on the premise that those to whom the 28 management of a business organization has been entrusted, and not

1 the courts, are best able to judge whether a particular act or 2 transaction is helpful to the conduct of the organization's affairs or 3 expedient for the attainment of its purposes. The rule establishes a
4 presumption that directors' decisions are based on sound business
5 judgment, and it prohibits courts from interfering in business
6 decisions made by the directors in good faith and in the absence of a 7 conflict of interest. “A hallmark of the business judgment rule is 8 that a court will not substitute its judgment for that of the board
9 if the latter's decision can be “attributed to any rational
10 business purpose.””

11 Id. at 1045 (emphasis added) (citations omitted).

12 To be sure, a proper complaint can allege facts sufficient to overcome the 13 Business Judgment Rule. But the standard is high, because the presumption
14 favors and protects the defendants' business judgment. As the Berg & Berg 15 court explained, a plaintiff must allege facts – not conclusions – sufficient to 16 establish an exception to the Business Judgment Rule. And to do so:

17 [M]ore is needed than “conclusory allegations of improper motives
18 and conflict of interest. Neither is it sufficient to generally allege 19 the failure to conduct an active investigation, in the absence of (1) 20 allegations of facts which would reasonably call for such an 21 investigation, or (2) allegations of facts which would have been 22 discovered by a reasonable investigation and would have been 23 material to the questioned exercise of business judgment.” In most 24 cases, “the presumption created by the business judgment rule can 25 be rebutted only by affirmative allegations of facts which, if proven,
26 would establish fraud, bad faith, overreaching or an unreasonable
27 failure to investigate material facts. Interference with the 28 discretion of directors is not warranted in doubtful cases.”

1                   ... the failure to sufficiently plead facts to rebut the
2           business judgment rule or establish its exceptions may be raised
3           on demurrer, as whether sufficient facts have been so pleaded is 4           a question of law.

5   Id. at 1045-46 (emphasis added) (citations omitted). Other courts also have 6   dismissed complaints on the ground that they do not allege facts sufficient to 7   rebut the Business Judgment Rule. McMichael v. United States Filter Corp.,
8   No. EDCV 99-182 VAP (MCx), 2001 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 3918, at *40-*43 (C.D.
9   Cal. Feb. 23, 2001); Lee v. Interinsurance Exchange, 50 Cal. App. 4th 694, 711-
10   17, 57 Cal. Rptr. 2d 798, 808-13 (1996); Barnes v. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins.
11   Co., 16 Cal. App. 4th 365, 378-79, 20 Cal. Rptr. 2d 87, 94-96 (1993); Fairchild
12   v. Bank of Am. Nat. Trust & Sav. Asso., 192 Cal. App. 2d 252, 256-58, 13 Cal.
13   Rptr. 491, 492-94 (1961); Findley v. Garrett, 109 Cal. App. 2d 166, 177-79, 240
14   P.2d 421, 427-30 (1952).

15           Before turning to the FAC's allegations, one other aspect of the Business
16   Judgment Rule merits mention. The Rule focuses mainly on the process by 17   which directors make business judgments, and not the content or results of those 18   decisions themselves. See Cal. Corp. Code § 309. California cases such as Berg
19   & Berg draw this distinction, but it is perhaps most trenchantly stated in a recent 20   Delaware decision involving (as here) a financial institution's decision to invest 21   in billions of dollars of MBS.

22           In re Citigroup Inc. Shareholder Derivative Litig., 964 A.2d 106 (Del. Ch.
23   2009) dismissed a shareholder derivative action alleging that Citigroup directors
24   breached their fiduciary duties by exposing Citigroup to $55 billion worth of 25   MBS. In dismissing the action, the Chancery Court focused entirely on the 26   process by which the directors had made their investment decision, and not on 27   the content of that decision, explaining:
28

1 What should be understood, but may not widely be understood by 2 courts or commentators who are not often required to face such 3 questions, is that compliance with a director's duty of care can never 4 appropriately be judicially determined by reference to the content of 5 the board decision that leads to a corporate loss, apart from 6 consideration of the good faith or rationality of the process
7 employed. That is, whether a judge or jury considering the matter
8 after the fact, believes a decision substantively wrong, or degrees of 9 wrong extending through "stupid" to "egregious" or "irrational",
10 provides no ground for director liability, so long as the court
11 determines that the process employed was either rational or 12 employed in a good faith effort to advance corporate interests. To 13 employ a different rule – one that permitted an "objective"
14 evaluation of the decision – would expose directors to substantive 15 second guessing by ill-equipped judges or juries, which would, in 16 the long-run, be injurious to investor interests. Thus, the business 17 judgment rule is process oriented and informed by a deep respect for 18 all good faith board decisions.

19 Id. at 127 (quoting In re Caremark Int'l Inc. Derivative Litig., 698 A.2d 959, 20 967-68 (Del. Ch. 1996) (emphasis omitted)).

21 2. The FAC does not allege facts sufficient to overcome California's 22 Business Judgment Rule.

23 The FAC does not allege facts sufficient to meet the standards outlined 24 above. Indeed, it scarcely tries. It focuses almost entirely on the content of the 25 directors' decisions (to approve the purchase of mortgage-backed securities, see 26 FAC ¶¶ 25-30, 45-53) and says almost nothing about the process of making
27 those decisions, beyond admitting that Defendants received detailed information,
28 set appropriate limits and lived within those limits, bought only high-rated investments (mostly AAA), monitored trends, lowered their exposure to riskier investments when risks emerged and got out of the market altogether long before most on Wall Street. E.g., FAC ¶¶ 32, 63-66, 69-70, 74-77.

a. The FAC does not allege that the content of Defendants’ business decisions was irrational or gross overreaching.

The case law (summarized above) and the statutes (Cal. Corp. Code §§ 309, 7231) provide no basis to second-guess the content of Defendants’ business decisions. The FAC does not allege that Defendants did not do what they “believe[d] to be in the best interest of the corporation” (Castetter, 184 F.3d at 1044) or engaged in “gross overreaching” (Ritter & Ritter, 166 Cal. App. 4th at 123). The FAC alleges nothing to suggest the directors sought to harm WesCorp, did not believe in what they were doing (after all, their own institutions invested with WesCorp) or were grossly overreaching. What it does allege is a disagreement about the risk-reward tradeoff in business: how much risk to bear and how much reward to seek. FAC ¶¶ 25-30, 45-53. That is exactly what the Business Judgment Rule protects. The “core protections” of the Rule are “protections designed to allow corporate managers and directors to pursue risky transactions without the specter of being held personally liable if those decisions turn out poorly.” Citigroup, 964 A. 2d at 125.

The NCUA does not like WesCorp’s departure from its “traditional business model,” its decision to borrow money (hardly a unique idea for a financial institution) or its search for higher yields (again, hardly a unique idea). With the full benefit of 20/20 hindsight, the NCUA claims these decisions led to large losses, although the allegations of loss are remarkably lacking in detail.

The FAC insinuates that because credit unions are non-profits, WesCorp should not have taken risks or sought higher yields. FAC ¶¶ 24-27. (One supposes a financial institution could avoid all risk if it did not lend money or invest money.) But the FAC does not allege that WesCorp’s strategy was a

1 secret,<sup>3</sup> that WesCorp violated any NCUA statute (they specifically authorize
2 investments in private-label MBS, see 12 U.S.C. § 1757(15)(B)) or any NCUA
3 regulation (of which there are hundreds, see 12 C.F.R. Parts 700-797, including 4 many regulating investments, see 12 C.F.R. § 704.5 (Oct. 25, 2002), 704.6 (Oct.
5 25, 2002), 704.8 (Oct. 25, 2002), 704.10 (Mar. 19, 1997) & Part 704, Appx. B
6 (Oct. 25, 2002); see also 12 C.F.R. §§ 703.1-703.19 (Jan. 3, 2003)), or that
7 offering higher yields to natural person credit unions that wanted higher yields 8 was somehow unlawful.

9 The whole tenor of the FAC is that the NCUA would rather WesCorp have 10 been more traditional and more risk-adverse (lower leverage, lower yield). But 11 as explained in Citigroup, that is exactly that sort of hindsight-fueled second-12 guessing that courts should avoid. The NCUA is not entitled to seek billions of 13 dollars from well-meaning individuals merely because the NCUA now suggests 14 it would have made different choices had government bureaucrats run WesCorp.

15 b. The FAC does not allege fraud, bad faith or conflicts of interest.

16 The FAC makes, with respect to these defendants, no allegations of fraud,
17 bad faith or conflicts of interest. Nor could it. These defendants (except Burrell, 18 who is discussed below) were unpaid volunteers (see 12 U.S.C. § 1761(c)),
19 CEOs or CFOs of natural person credit unions chosen by member credit unions
20 to serve on WesCorp's Board (see 12 U.S.C. § 1761(a)). There is not even a 21 whiff of self-dealing or self-interest around them. They are simply good citizens
22 who tried their best to oversee the management of the money their own credit
23 unions had entrusted to WesCorp. They had "skin in the game" and no ulterior
24 motives, and the FAC does not allege otherwise.

---

25 <sup>3</sup> At all times, the NCUA had at least two examiners resident at WesCorp, and 26 it conducted periodic regulatory examinations of WesCorp. The FAC does
27 not allege either that it criticized WesCorp when WesCorp was buying MBS
28 (before the summer of 2007) or that WesCorp failed to respond to whatever suggestions the NCUA offered in its reports of examination.

c. The FAC's process allegations not do overcome the Business Judgment Rule.

To the very limited extent that the FAC actually does address process, the FAC fails to allege lack of a reasonable inquiry. As explained in Lee, it is not enough to allege a failure to conduct an active investigation without also alleging (1) facts which would reasonably call for such an investigation or (2) facts which would have been discovered by a reasonable investigation and would have been material to the questioned exercise of business judgment. Lee, 50 Cal. App. 4th at 715. The FAC alleges no such facts. Instead, and as in Lee, what the FAC offers is merely the conclusion that there “was not a reasonable inquiry because the defendants reached a conclusion with which the plaintiffs disagree.” Id. at 716. That kind of wishful thinking does not suffice, said Lee, in upholding the sustaining of a demurrer. The same is true here.

Before turning to the FAC's criticisms of Defendants' processes, it is useful to recall what the FAC concedes. It admits that:

- Defendants received detailed information about WesCorp's investment portfolio, set, monitored and followed appropriate concentration limits, monitored trends and reacted to trends (lowering their exposure to AA-rated securities after 2005 and ceasing MBS purchases altogether long before most on Wall Street). E.g., FAC ¶¶ 32, 62-66, 69-70, 74-77.
- WesCorp classified and tracked MBS investments by rating (AAA and AA) and FICO score (prime, alt-A and subprime), and used the bond rating of investments to track tranche positions. FAC ¶¶ 71-72.
- Each year, Defendants adopted a budget that contained detailed information about projected expenses and projected fee income, including monthly projections of investment income, investment expense and net interest income. FAC ¶ 65.
- Defendants regularly attended meetings of WesCorp's Board of Directors and ALCO, and regularly received information about the state of the economy, the investment climate and WesCorp's investment strategy. FAC ¶ 74.

- Defendants received and considered presentations on Option ARM MBS and took affirmative steps to adjust WesCorp's investment strategy based on the information received at ALCO meetings (e.g., starting to get out of AA in 2005). FAC ¶¶ 62-64, 75-77.

This is not the portrait of a Board run amok.

As telling as what the FAC admits is what it omits: It does not allege any violation of the myriad NCUA regulations promulgated under 12 U.S.C.

§ 1766(a) detailing how a credit union should analyze, limit and monitor its investments. See 12 C.F.R. Part 704; see also id. Part 703. Consider this:

- The NCUA's regulations expressly contemplate and authorize investments in private-label MBS. 12 C.F.R. § 704.5(c), (h) (Oct. 25, 2002) (specifying kinds of MBS allowed, and not allowed) & Part 704, Appx. B (Oct. 25, 2002); see also id. § 703.2 (June 3, 2003) (definition of "Mortgage related security"), § 703.14(d) (June 3, 2003) (CDOs), § 703.16(d)-(f) (June 3, 2003) (specifying kinds of MBS that are not allowed).
- The NCUA's regulations set concentration limits (id. § 704.6(c) (Oct. 25, 2002)) and discuss how to analyze concentration risk (see id. § 703.3(f) (June 3, 2003)).
- The NCUA's regulations also require prompt reporting to the NCUA of any investment that falls out of compliance or has its rating downgraded below the approved level (id. § 704.10 (Oct. 25, 2002); see also id. § 703.7 (June 3, 2003)).
- Until 2002, the NCUA's regulations only permitted investments rated "AAA" and up (see 12 C.F.R. § 704.6(d) (Mar. 19, 1997)).
- In 2002 – the year the FAC accuses WesCorp of becoming more "aggressive" (FAC ¶¶ 25, 45) – the NCUA lowered its rating requirement to "AA minus"

1 for all corporate credit unions (id. § 704.6(d)(2) (Oct. 25, 2002)) and “BBB”
2 for credit unions (such as WesCorp) given expanded investment authority
3 under Appendix B to Part 704 (id. Part 704, Appx. B (Oct. 25, 2002)).

4 • The NCUA withdrew permission for qualifying corporate credit unions to 5 invest in BBB-rated securities only 12 days ago, on October 20, 2010, and the 6 new rules do not go into effect until January 2011. See 75 Fed. Reg. 64851
7 (Oct. 20, 2010).

8 • The FAC does not mention that at all relevant times, the NCUA gave 9 WesCorp the highest level of expanded investment authority, including
10 permission to buy securities rated as low as BBB, and that the NCUA
11 therefore subjected WesCorp to the very highest level of regulatory scrutiny,
12 including on-site NCUA examiners who had real-time access to all ALCO
13 and Board reports, and daily access to WesCorp personnel.

14 • But the FAC does allege that “the lowest tranche MBS purchased were rated 15 AA” (not BBB, as the NCUA permitted until 12 days ago) and admits that 16 WesCorp acted to reduce its holdings of AA after 2005. FAC ¶¶ 62-64.

17 The FAC does not allege that Defendants violated any of these or the myriad 18 other regulations and directives detailing how Defendants were to do their jobs.

19 With all these admissions and omissions, what does the FAC criticize?

20 The FAC concedes that WesCorp’s annual budget contains detailed 21 information about projected expenses and fee income, as well as projected 22 monthly investment income, investment expense and net interest income, but the 23 FAC criticizes the budget for not being more detailed about how changes in the 24 composition of investments might affect these monthly projections. FAC ¶ 65.

25 Such nit-picking cannot satisfy the standard set by Lee: the allegations do not 26 specify what red flags warranted such additional analysis, or how such additional 27 analysis would have affected an investment decision. See Lee, 50 Cal. App. 4th 28 at 715.

1 Similarly, the FAC admits that WesCorp tracked and periodically
2 reviewed the ratings and other characteristics of its investments, but argues that
3 Option ARMs and lower-tranche MBS should have been tracked separately.
4 FAC ¶¶ 71-72, 113, 114(e). Again, these allegations fail to satisfy Lee: the FAC
5 alleges no facts showing that, at the time, such additional tracking was called for 6 or that such additional tracking would have uncovered something material. Lee,
7 50 Cal. App. 4th at 715-16.

8 Especially in hindsight, any management report could be improved. After 9 all, given all the time and money in the world, there always is something more
10 that could done, or done a little differently. But failing to find and analyze every 11 single piece of information that could possibly be uncovered by additional 12 inquiry is not the standard by which directors' acts must be judged. The 13 Business Judgment Rule does not require that directors conduct "the ideal or 14 perfect investigation – one that can anticipate all suggestions and withstand any 15 criticism . . . of future court review. What is required is that the corporation
16 makes a reasonable effort to reach an informed business decision." In re
17 Consumers Power Co. Derivative Litig., 132 F.R.D. 455, 483 (E.D. Mich. 1990)
18 (emphasis in original). Indeed, "in the world of business (as elsewhere), persons 19 are often (or always) required to act on less than perfect information" Estate of 20 Detwiler v. Offenbecher, 728 F. Supp. 103, 152 (S.D.N.Y. 1989) (citation 21 omitted). The FAC's nit-picking cannot overcome the Business Judgment Rule.

22 The same is true of the FAC's conclusory and fact-bare suggestion that 23 Defendants did not understand what they were doing. FAC ¶ 113. In Castetter,
24 the FDIC attempted to show that a failed bank's directors did not comprehend 25 the information that they received, failed to understand their core business, and 26 accordingly failed to adopt proper policies concerning loans, capital adequacy,
27 collections and internal controls. Castetter, 184 F.3d at 1045. The Ninth Circuit
28 held that such evidence did not establish a claim because it bears on the

1 soundness of the directors' actions, not on the process of making an adequate
2 inquiry. Id. So too here. Condescension about Defendants' understanding is no
3 substitute for an adequate complaint.

4 Because Defendants were disinterested and made good-faith decisions
5 based on a reasonable inquiry, the Business Judgment Rule insulates them from a
6 claim for ordinary negligence and breach of the duty of care. The NCUA has not 7 pleaded facts adequate to show that it is "plausible" (within the meaning of 8 Twombly, 550 U.S. at 555-56; see also Moss, 572 F.3d at 969) that it will 9 succeed on the First Claim. Therefore, the First Claim should be dismissed.

10 d. The FAC fails to allege facts particular to Burrell.

11 Robert Burrell was an officer and not a director. Courts have held that 12 both directors and officers are fiduciaries (Gantler v. Stephens, 965 A.2d 695, 13 708-09 (Del. 2009)) and both also enjoy the protection of the Business Judgment
14 Rule (McMichael, 2001 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 3918, *31 (holding that "the business
15 judgment rule attaches to protect corporate officers and directors and the 16 decisions they make, and courts hesitate to second-guess such decisions"))).

17 But that does not mean fiduciary duty claims against officers can just 18 piggyback on claims against directors. Instead, a claim against an officer must 19 "allege facts demonstrating that (1) he took part in the challenged conduct and 20 (2) failed to demonstrate the due care attendant to his particular office in doing
21 so." Bridgeport Holdings, Inc. Liquidating Trust v. Boyer, 388 B.R. 548, 573
22 (Bankr. D. Del. 2008). The reasoning is practical: "Different corporate offices
23 obviously hold different responsibilities. For example, the responsibilities of 24 [VP] of Marketing are not the same as those of a General Counsel." Id. To 25 overcome a motion to dismiss, a complaint must describe "which office and 26 which responsibilities each defendant allegedly held," because otherwise "it is 27 not possible to discern what a particular defendant did or failed to do in the 28 exercise of due care in his capacity as holder of that office." Id.

1       The FAC fails this test. It does not describe the roles of any officer; it
2       does not allege which decisions they made; it says very little about them beyond
3       their job titles. For example, it fails to allege that Burrell had any specific duties
4       or responsibilities subjecting him to a different or higher standard of fiduciary
5       duty. It also does not allege any acts by Burrell that breached any duties.
6       Indeed, he is mentioned by name only in the paragraphs identifying him as a
7       party and mentioning his responsibility for meeting earnings goals. FAC ¶¶ 8,
8       67. By failing to allege a duty or its breach, the FAC states no negligence claim 9       at all against Burrell, much less one that overcomes the Business Judgment Rule.

10   B.    The FAC’s Second Claim does not state a claim for gross negligence
11       because California law does not recognize a general claim for gross
12       negligence and because the FAC does not allege facts amounting to 13       gross negligence.

14   1.    The federal statutory floor does not apply in California.

15       Under federal statutes such as 12 U.S.C. § 1787(h), “state law sets the 16       standard of conduct as long as the state standard (such as simple negligence) is 17       stricter than that of the federal statute. The federal statute nonetheless sets a 18       ‘gross negligence’ floor, which applies as a substitute for state standards that are 19       more relaxed.” Atherton, 519 U.S. at 215. Here, California law is stricter than 20       gross negligence. Castetter, 184 F.3d at 1043-44. Thus, under Atherton there is 21       no need or occasion to resort to the federal floor. This without more defeats the 22       Second Claim, which purports to invoke section 1787(h). FAC ¶ 119.

23   2.    California law does not recognize a general claim for gross negligence.

24       If there were occasion to resort to section 1787(h), then the NCUA would 25       face another obstacle. Section 1787(h) says “gross negligence” is “defined and 26       determined under applicable State law.” Here, that is California law. FAC
27       ¶ 112. But California does not recognize any general claim of “gross
28       negligence.” Martinez v. United States, No. EDCV 09-0375-SVW(RC),

1 2010 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 105763, *20-*21 (C.D. Cal. Mar. 25, 2010); Saenz v.
2 Whitewater Voyages, Inc., 226 Cal. App. 3d 758, 766 n.9, 276 Cal. Rptr. 672,
3 677 n.9 (1991); Continental Ins. Co. v. Am. Prot. Indus., 197 Cal. App. 3d 322,
4 330, 242 Cal. Rptr. 784, 789-90 (1987).

5 Thus, there is no need to resort to a gross negligence claim under Atherton,
6 and no gross negligence claim to resort to under California law. For either
7 reason, or both reasons, the Second Claim fails as a matter of law.

8 3. The FAC does not allege facts amounting to gross negligence.

9 Even if there were not these two legal bars to alleging a claim for gross
10 negligence, the FAC simply does not allege facts amounting to gross negligence
11 under any recognized definition – California, Delaware or otherwise.

12 California courts have not defined gross negligence in the director context,
13 presumably because California does not recognize such a claim. But various 14 California statutes do use the term in other contexts,<sup>4</sup> and California courts have 15 had occasion to define “gross negligence” as a “want of even scant care” or “an 16 extreme departure from the ordinary standard of conduct.” City of Santa
17 Barbara v. Superior Court, 41 Cal. 4th 747, 754, 62 Cal. Rptr. 3d 527, 532
18 (2007) (quotations omitted).<sup>5</sup>

19 Delaware courts define gross negligence in the corporate context as “a 20 reckless indifference to or a deliberate disregard of the whole body of 21 stockholders or actions which are without the bounds of reason.” In re Walt

22 _____

23 <sup>4</sup> E.g., Cal. Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 2533 (speech-language pathologists and 24 audiologists), 2563 (contact lens dispensers), 3401 (hearing aid dispensers), 3137 (optometrists).

25 <sup>5</sup> California courts also recognize the propriety of dismissing on motion a 26 complaint that fails to allege facts demonstrating an extreme departure from 27 the ordinary standard of conduct. Devito v. California, 202 Cal. App. 3d 264,
28 272, 248 Cal. Rptr. 330, 335 (1988); see also Eastburn v. Regional Fire
Protection Authority, 31 Cal. 4th 1175, 1185-86, 7 Cal. Rptr. 3d 552, 661-62 (2003).

1 Disney Co. Deriv. Litig., 907 A.2d 693, 750 (Del. Ch. 2005) (holding that nine-
2 figure severance payment to fired executive was not actionable as gross
3 negligence) (citation omitted). The FAC cannot conceivably be read to allege 4 anything that comes close to being “want of even scant care,” an “extreme 5 departure from the ordinary standard of conduct,” “reckless indifference,”
6 “deliberate disregard” or “without the bounds of reason.”

7 RTC v. Blasdel, 930 F. Supp. 417 (D. Ariz. 1994) also is instructive.
8 There the RTC alleged that the directors of a failed bank had failed to adopt
9 adequate lending policies and procedures, but evidence showed that the directors
10 had enacted some policies and procedures, had adjusted those policies and 11 procedures to address the concerns of regulators, had attended board meetings at 12 which they reviewed and considered relevant and sufficient materials when 13 making decisions, but nonetheless made some arguably improvident loans. Id. at 14 426-27. The court held that the evidence simply did not support allegations that 15 directors abdicated their responsibilities or were grossly negligent. Id.

16 Under any of these definitions, the FAC’s allegations do not amount to 17 gross negligence. The FAC admits that Defendants adopted a yearly budget that
18 contained detailed information about projected expenses and projected fee
19 income. FAC ¶ 65. The FAC admits that Defendants adopted policies
20 specifying concentration limits for its investment securities and periodically
21 amended the policies to change limits or impose new limits. FAC ¶ 69. The 22 FAC admits that Defendants tracked and reported investments by rating (AAA or 23 AA) and by FICO score (prime, alt-A, and subprime). FAC ¶ 71. The FAC
24 admits that Defendants adopted concentration limits for the investments at issue,
25 and did not exceed them. FAC ¶¶ 69, 73. The FAC admits that Defendants
26 attended ALCO meetings, where they received presentations about the state of 27 the economy generally and WesCorp’s investment strategy specifically. FAC
28 ¶ 74. And the FAC admits that Defendants adjusted WesCorp’s investment

1 strategy based on the information presented at the ALCO meetings, first
2 decreasing investments in AA-rated securities and then stopping investments in 3 MBS altogether. FAC ¶¶ 62-64, 75-77.<sup>6</sup> As shown in part III.A.2.c above, the 4 FAC's only allegations of process deficiencies are either wholly conclusory or 5 else are nit-picking that cannot rise even to the level of ordinary negligence, let 6 alone a "want of even scant care" or "an extreme departure from the ordinary 7 standard of conduct." City of Santa Barbara, 41 Cal. 4th at 754.

8 Because the FAC does not allege facts to show that it is "plausible" that 9 Defendants were grossly negligent, the FAC's Second Claim must be dismissed.

10 As with the fiduciary duty claim, the FAC does not describe the duties of 11 each officer sufficient to state a claim for gross negligence. To plead negligence,
12 a complaint must actually allege a duty. Martinez, 2010 U.S. Dist. LEXIS
13 105763, at *20-*21. The FAC does not do so.

14 C. The FAC's First and Second Claims are time-barred as against 15 Cheney, Updike and Rhamy.

16 The NCUA has three years from the date of the conservatorship
17 (March 19, 2009, see FAC ¶ 1) to bring claims against directors and officers.
18 12 U.S.C. § 1787(b)(14). But it can only assert claims that were not time-barred 19 as of the date of the conservatorship; section 1787(b)(14) does not resurrect from 20 the dead claims that were time-barred as of that date. FDIC v. McSweeney,
21 976 F.2d 532, 534 (9th Cir. 1992). The question is thus whether the NCUA's
22 claims were time-barred under state law as of March 19, 2009, bearing in mind
23

---

24 <sup>6</sup> As noted, the FAC alleges that WesCorp departed from its traditional 25 business model. FAC ¶ 25. Merely departing from a traditional business
26 model is not gross negligence. See Trenwick Am. Litig. Trust v. Ernst &
27 Young LLP, 906 A.2d 168, 194 (Del. Ch. 2006). That is especially true
28 where, as here, WesCorp's brief foray into AA-rated investments occurred only after the NCUA changed its regulations to permit investments rated as low as BBB. See part III.A.2.c above.

1 that the FAC alleges that Cheney left the WesCorp Board in February 2006
2 (three years and one month before March 2009), and Rhamy and Updike left the
3 WesCorp Board in April 2006 (two years and eleven months before March 4 2009). FAC ¶¶ 17, 20-21.

5 The FAC is highly ambiguous as to who allegedly did what, or when.
6 Given this ambiguity, one cannot tell whether Cheney, Rhamy and Updike are 7 accused of any actionable acts or omissions within any limitations period. But if 8 the applicable statute of limitations is three years or less (in the case of Cheney)
9 or two years or less (in the case of Rhamy and Updike), then the limitations
10 period begins after they left WesCorp's Board. If so, they cannot possibly be 11 liable to the NCUA for anything.

12 First Claim: The limitations period for the First Claim should be two 13 years; California authority – on this point of California law – holds that the 14 proper limitations period for a breach of fiduciary duty claim against a corporate 15 director is two years, under Code of Civil Procedure section 339. Burt v. Irvine
16 Co., 237 Cal. App. 2d 828, 865-67, 47 Cal. Rptr. 392, 415-17 (1965); Southern
17 Counties Thrift Co. v. Rairdon, 47 Cal. App. 2d 770, 771, 118 P.2d 828, 829
18 (1941); 3 B.E. Witkin, California Procedure, Actions § 650, at 858 (5th ed.
19 2008). But McSweeney (which did not discuss either Burt or Southern Counties)
20 holds that the statute of limitations is four years under California's catchall
21 statute of limitations, Code of Civil Procedure section 343. McSweeney,
22 976 F.3d at 534-36. Defendants Cheney, Rhamy and Updike recognize that this 23 Court is constrained to follow McSweeney as binding precedent and therefore 24 must rule against them on this point. Id. They make this argument simply to 25 preserve it for appellate purposes. See United States v. Zuniga, 579 F.3d 845,
26 847-48 (8th Cir. 2009); cf. Rodriguez de Quijas v. Shearson/American Express,
27 Inc., 490 U.S. 477, 484, 109 S. Ct. 1917, 1920-21 (1989).

28 Second Claim: The limitations period for the Second Claim is either two

1 years or three years, which means that the Second Claim must be dismissed
2 against Cheney, Rhamy and Updike (if two years) or Cheney only (if three 3 years). California law does not have a limitations period for a claim of gross
4 negligence because California does not recognize a separate tort of gross
5 negligence. See authorities cited in part III.B.1 above. Hence the lack of 6 certainty as between two years and three years.

7 Two years: Although gross negligence is not a separate tort in California,
8 it is akin to simple negligence, being the more egregious form of the same thing.
9 Continental Ins. Co., 197 Cal. App. 3d at 330.<sup>7</sup> California's statute of limitations
10 for claims of simple negligence in the context of a directors' duties is two years.
11 See McSweeney, 976 F.2d at 534. Thus, if a claim for gross negligence should be 12 recognized at all (and it should not, for the reasons stated in part III.B.1 above),
13 the statute of limitations for a claim of gross negligence also should be two years.

14 Three years: Alternatively, and if, despite the arguments above, the Court
15 were to hold that a claim for gross negligence exists under 12 U.S.C. § 1787(h)
16 even though it does not exist under California common law, then that claim must 17 be a creation of section 1787(h). If so, Code of Civil Procedure section 359's
18 three-year statute of limitations would apply. That statute applies to "actions
19 against directors ... to enforce a liability created by law ... ." Civ. Proc. Code
20 § 359. California courts construe the words "liability created by law" to mean a 21 statutory liability first authorized by a statute or the Constitution, as opposed to 22 one that existed at common law and was merely codified by statute; but 23 California courts have split over section 359's applicability to Corporations Code
24 section 309. Compare Smith v. Superior Court, 217 Cal. App. 3d 950, 953-54,

---

25
26 <sup>7</sup> As an English judge once famously put it, gross negligence is simply ordinary 27 negligence "with the addition of a vituperative epithet." Wilson v. Brett, 28 [1843] 11 M. & W. 113, 116, 152 Eng. Rep. 737 (Rolfe, B.) (quoted in Archie
v. City of Racine, 847 F.2d 1211, 1219 (7th Cir. 1988)).

266 Cal. Rptr. 253, 254-55 (1990) with Lehman v. Superior Court, 145 Cal. App.
4th 109, 114-22, 51 Cal. Rptr. 3d 411, 413-20 (2006) and Briano v. Rubio, 46 Cal. App. 4th 1167, 1173-80, 54 Cal. Rptr. 2d 408, 411-15 (1996). While these three opinions disagree as to whether section 359 applies to section 309, all three opinions agree that section 359 would apply to a statutory standard of director liability without common-law roots. Because Section 1787(h) would not simply be a codification of a common-law principle, section 359 would apply to a claim based on section 1787(h).

If the limitations period is two years, the Second Claim must be dismissed as to Cheney, Updike and Rhamy. If, however, the limitations period is three years, the Second Claim must be dismissed as to Cheney.

D. Dismissal should be without leave to amend.

Defendants recognize the policy of liberality when it comes to granting leave to amend. But that policy has its limits. It is one thing to treat liberally a private plaintiff who has been forced to plead a claim against corporations or their directors without any access to the corporation's records. Cf. Eminence Capital, LLC v. Aspeon Inc., 316 F.3d 1048 (9th Cir. 2003). But it is another thing to extend the same liberality to a government agency that has had the run of WesCorp for the last year and a half, with complete access to all its books and records, and the untrammelled ability to interrogate its employees without anyone representing Defendants in the room. Where there is no reason to think amendment would cure the defects, there is no reason to grant leave to amend, even the first time around. Cf. In re Hansen Natural Corp. Sec. Litig., 527 F.
Supp. 2d 1142, 1163 (C.D. Cal. 2007). This is such a case.

IV. CONCLUSION.

When big losses occur, there is an all-too-human desire to find scapegoats.
Doubtlessly WesCorp made some investment decisions that, with 20/20 hindsight and full knowledge of the credit crisis of 2008-09, one might wish it

1 had not made. But it is one thing to regret an investment and quite another to ask
2 a group of unpaid volunteer directors to ante up $6.8 billion in damages for
3 having made, in perfect good faith, some investment decisions that did not work
4 out as one might have hoped. The NCUA knew then what Defendants were 5 doing and how they were doing it. It therefore has no business suing them now
6 for billions of dollars on account of business decisions that the NCUA's statutes
7 and regulations and its examiners permitted – and indeed applauded – at the time.

8 For each of the foregoing reasons, the FAC should be dismissed without 9 leave to amend.

10 Dated: November 1, 2010.

11 PILLSBURY WINTHROP SHAW PITTMAN LLP
12 REYNOLD L. SIEMENS #177956
13 Email: reynold.siemens@pillsburylaw.com
14 725 South Figueroa Street, Suite 2800
Los Angeles, CA 90017-5406
Telephone: (213) 488-7100
Facsimile: (213) 629-1033

15 PILLSBURY WINTHROP SHAW PITTMAN LLP
16 BRUCE A. ERICSON #76342
17 Email: bruce.ericson@pillsburylaw.com
18 GEORGE ALLEN BRANDT #264935
19 Email: allen.brandt@pillsburylaw.com
20 50 Fremont Street
Post Office Box 7880
San Francisco, CA 94120-7880
Telephone: (415) 983 1000
Facsimile: (415) 983 1200

21 By /s/ Bruce A. Ericson
22 Bruce A. Ericson

23 Attorneys for Defendants Robert John Burrell, William
24 Cheney, Gordon Dames, Robert H. Harvey, Jr., James
25 Jordan, Timothy M. Kramer, Robin Lentz, John M. Merlo, 26 Warren Nakamura, Brian Osberg, David Rhamy and 27 Sharon Updike
28